BELOW PLEASE FIND OUR OFFICIAL CLOVERFIELD TRAILER LAUNCH PLAN.

Pls share with PPI & Piracy team.

We will release the trailer exclusively in theaters (with BEOWULF) on Thursday, Nov. 15th

--We will assume audiences will tape the trailer on their own and post it on YouTube - we will NOT issue take-down notices

--We will OFFICIALLY release the trailer on iTunes on Nov. 19 - with an HD version

--We will ship the poster to theaters with the BEOWULF trailer

--We will assume audiences will steal the one-sheet and post it on YouTube - we will NOT issue take-down notices

Yeah, we should drive to MTV.com whenever we can as a rule of thumb. It will be interesting to see what VIA says about the youtube... ;)

We are not posting everything to YouTube. If you tell us that you want us to drive traffic to MTV.com then we will send people there, but otherwise they typically go to YouTube. The only exceptions for us are when we are giving a site an exclusive (i.e. Daily Motion or IFILM) for home page features. If we are trying to be “under the radar” we will not upload videos to the Fanscapevideos YouTube account but will create a different one. We will let you know whenever that happens.

Yeah I can give you a new grid every Monday with the new video additions. I have sent two already – one last week and one this week. Is Monday okay for the next one?

Subject: MTV Video Uploads - Fanscape PR ONLY.xls

Hi Dave & Jenn,

Attached is the excel grid with the UGC upload URL's for the PR team only. As you can imagine, the marketing team has many many more videos uploaded on 30-50 UGC sites and will be sending their list to Amy in a separate grid. The PR team primarily works with YouTube and IFILM when not sending out the direct MTV links, so our list is much more manageable for the time being.

Everything in the attached grid is currently live. I have only included current or recent campaigns. There are additional MTV videos under the user name (fanscapevideos) on YouTube, but they are from last year.

When we update this grid to send to you weekly - do you want me to include additional videos saved under the same user names attached (FanscapeVideos4U, fanscapevideos, and Snackboard), or can you just get clearance from your legal department for those specific profiles? We will of course send you any URL's and video titles for any clips we upload to different (and less obvious) user names, but if our profiles on IFILM and YouTube are "white-listed" by Viacom, I don't want to continue to add any unnecessary information.

Let me know.

Thanks!

-Christy

Who We Are

YouTube is the leading destination for online video entertainment. Our video network reaches more than 7 million unique visitors every day, nearly half of which are 18-24 year olds. This passionate and loyal audience contributes to our daily growth by uploading and sharing videos with their friends and family across the web and around the world. YouTube serves up over 10 million videos every day – that's more than 115 videos per second and 6,944 videos per minute. We display more than half a billion pages every month and our email newsletter reaches over 200,000 opt-in subscribers. This media kit outlines the options available to advertisers. If you have questions or would like to discuss a custom marketing solution, please contact us and we'll be glad to assist you.

What People Are Saying

Advertising on YouTube is a powerful way to build brand awareness and deliver your message to your target audience. Due to the unique design and viral nature of our site, our users have a high degree of interaction with the content and each other. Instead of having a passive experience, they share, subscribe to, comment on, create playlists around, and identify themselves with the content and advertising. YouTube has already attracted a wide range of content partners and advertisers. Here's what they're saying about us:

"YouTube has proven to be a very effective way to reach customers."

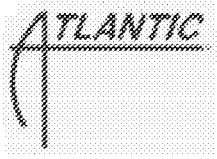
- Bob Jones, VP of Sales, Nike, Inc.

"If you're trying to break a new band you've gotta be on YouTube."

- Joe Smith, VP of Marketing, Warner Brothers Records

"After promoting a new album on YouTube, our online sales went through the roof!"

- Bill Williams, Promotions Director, Atlantic Records



"I believe that the reason YouTube is doing so well versus the other video search services is the viral (and free) nature of the content, combined with its dominant audience of teens and college age adults"

- LeAnn Prescott, Analyst, HitWise

"It's the greatest thing since the Internet. Everybody wants to have an audience for their stuff."

- Steve Silvestri, YouTube user

Hi Julie,

My name is Grant - I work over at Wiredset - an online marketing agency in NYC. We are all huge fans of YouTube and we upload many of our clients videos to the service. Our best performing videos of the moment are a music video from Flyleaf (over 400,000 views) and weekly clips from the new MTV show - Call to Greatness.

My purpose for this email is to introduce myself, say hi, and hopefully get to know you better and work with YouTube at a higher level. We work with every major label and have clients all over the entertainment industry - and we always get video from them specifically for YouTube.

I'd love to chat over the phone about all possibilities of working together. We are a forward thinking company like yours and have limitless potential for marketing ideas.

I'm mostly free on Thursday and Friday - pls let me know what day/time works best for you.

Look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,

Grant

Heather,

You may have seen recent press coverage relating to an NBC-owned television pilot titled "Nobody's Watching" which is currently on YouTube. (The first of the three-part video is: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uEYCN3hVTYI.) In order to avoid any confusion or misunderstanding, I wanted to make sure you are aware that NBC is permitting YouTube to host this content, so that there is no need for you to remove it until NBC expressly requests its removal.

As always, feel free to contact me with any questions.

Regards,

Steve Kang

The Lonelygirl That Really Wasn't

By VIRGINIA HEFFERNAN and TOM ZELLER Jr.

A nearly four-month-old Internet drama in which the cryptic video musings of a fresh-faced teenager became the obsession of millions of devotees — themselves divided over the very authenticity of the videos, or who was behind them or why — appears to be in its final act.

The woman who plays Lonelygirl15 on the video-sharing site YouTube.com has been identified as Jessica Rose, a 20-ish resident of New Zealand and Los Angeles and a graduate of the New York Film Academy. And the whole project appears to be the early serialized version of what eventually will become a movie.

Matt Foremski, the 18-year-old son of Tom Foremski, a reporter for the blog Silicon Valley Watcher, was the first to disinter a trove of photographs of the familiar-looking actress, who portrayed the character named Bree in the videos. The episodes suggested Bree was the home-schooled daughter of strictly religious parents who was able to find the time to upload video blogs of her innermost thoughts.

The discovery and the swift and subsequent revelation of other details surrounding the perpetrators of the videos and the fake fan site that accompanied it are bringing to an end one of the Internet's more elaborately constructed mysteries. The fans' disbelief in Lonelygirl15 was not willingly suspended, but rather teased and toyed with. Whether they will embrace the project as a new narrative form, condemn it or simply walk away remains to be seen.

The masterminds of the Lonelygirl15 videos are Ramesh Flinders, a screenwriter and filmmaker from Marin County, Calif., and Miles Beckett, a doctor turned filmmaker. The high quality of the videos caused many users to suspect a script and production crew, but Bree's bedroom scenes were shot in Mr. Flinders's home, in his actual bedroom, typically using nothing more than a Logitech QuickCam, a Web camera that retails for about $150.

Together with Grant Steinfeld, a software engineer in San Francisco, Mr. Flinders contrived to produce and distribute the videos to pique maximum curiosity about them.

The photographs of the actress, which made it clear that Ms. Rose has been playing Bree in the videos, were cached on Google.

"We were all under N.D.A.'s" Mr. Steinfeld said, referring to non-disclosure agreements the cast — and their friends — were asked to sign to preserve the mystery of Lonelygirl15. "They had a lawyer involved," he said. "My first impression was like, wow, can this be legitimate? Is this ethical? I was very concerned about that in the beginning."

But after he came to understand the project, Mr. Steinfeld said, he came to believe that something truly novel was at hand. "They were like the new Marshall McLuhan."

Mr. Flinders and Mr. Beckett obscured their location by sending e-mail messages as Bree from various Internet computer addresses, including the address of Creative Artists Agency, the Beverly Hills talent agency where the team is now represented. Amanda Solomon Goodfried, an assistant at the agency, is believed to have helped Mr. Flinders and Mr. Beckett conceal their identities. Moreover, Ms. Goodfried's father-in-law, Kenneth Goodfried, a lawyer in Encino, filed to trademark "Lonelygirl15" in August.

The story of how Mr. Flinders, Mr. Beckett and Ms. Rose were discovered in spite of their efforts to hide, and prolong the mystery, sheds light on the nature of online wiki-style investigations and manhunts. When Mr. Steinfeld's dummy site, which had been set up before the first Lonelygirl15 video was even posted, struck users as suspicious and unsupervised — Mr. Steinfeld says he grew tired of running it, and dropped out of the project — fans set up their own site devoted to Lonelygirl15, which soon attracted more than a thousand members.

Both sites drew contributions from novelists, journalists, academics, day traders, lawyers, bloggers, filmmakers, video game designers, students, housewives, bored youngsters and experts on religion and botany. In the cacophony of conjecture, analysis, close-readings, jokes, insults, and distractions, good information sometimes surfaced.

Last month, a Lonelygirl15 fan discovered and posted a trademark application by Mr. Goodfried, which seemed to prove that the videos, which presented themselves as nothing but a video diary, were at least in part a commercial venture. Then, last week, three tech-savvy fans, working together, set up a sting on the e-mail being used by "Bree"; the operation revealed to them the I.P. address of Creative Artists Agency.

On the strength of this information, Mr. Foremski was confident he could find some trace of Bree on the Internet. He was sure that any participant in a semiprofessional production like Lonelygirl15 would have posted pictures somewhere. Sure enough, they had.

Mr. Steinfeld, on learning that Mr. Flinders and Mr. Beckett had been found out, offered his photographs of Ms. Rose as proof of his involvement in the Lonelygirl15 videos. He had been hired to take the pictures on the set at the start of shooting.

The series, which Mr. Flinders and Mr. Beckett plan to continue on a site overseen by them, may play differently with fans now that they know for sure that Bree is an actress. Part of the appeal of the series was that the serious-minded, literate Bree offered an unbeatable fantasy: a beautiful girl who techy guys had something in common with.

On learning that Ms. Rose was an actress whose interests, unlike the scientific and religious issues that fascinated Bree, ran to parties and posing, one fan wrote, "Very cute, but she's really not into Feynmann and Jared Diamond! (I'm heart-broken ...But a wonderful actress, had me fooled into thinking she was a geek like me.)"
